The Art of WRITING

Maryam Durrani is a young author from Virginia, USA, who published her trilogy by the age of eighteen. Her work has reached over one million reads from fans all over the world.

ABOUT ME

I completed high school much earlier than my peers. As a young author, I've written books that are available in the Loudoun County Public Libraries, and are being sold by Amazon, Barnes and Noble, Books a Million, and other book stores.

I have written and published three books since the age of fourteen. Before I published my trilogy, I was writing stories on Wattpad, where I eventually reached over a million reads. I have been writing since I was twelve, gaining experience and sharpening my skills ever since.

I have also taught in private schools and tutored high school students in English and Chemistry.

I attend major events for book signings, such as the Baltimore Book Festival, one of the largest in the world.

Recently, my achievements were recognized by the Loudoun County Board of Supervisors.

HOW CAN I HELP?

With the release of my third book, Apprentice, I have decided to start teaching classes that will help students learn story and essay writing. These classes will be designed to help improve writing structure and building a strong vocabulary. These two classes are: The Road to Writing and Everything Essays. Both are courses that are guaranteed to help your child improve their overall writing skills.

I teach public, private, and home-schooled students.

It's significant for young kids to know story, literature, and short essay writing from a very young age, which is why I decided to create these classes. Knowing how to write essays will help them achieve milestones like getting into good colleges, winning scholarships, and excelling in debates.
